In Hitman: Absolution, Agent 47 returns as a ruthless professional in HITMAN 3 for the most important contracts of his entire career. Embark on an intimate journey of darkness and mystery as you uncover a disturbing, personalized plot. Use your cunning and lethal skill to carry out the assignments as you battle enigmatic new enemies and try to stay alive in one of the most immersive and believable worlds ever created. Follow the same game-changing gameplay system Hitman fans have grown to love: Sneak around undetected, fashion your disguise, choose your weapons and decimate your targets in style – but keep one step ahead of the police. The additional chapter Hitman 3: Contracts consists of two missions. The two included chapters refer to the newly updated Steam version of the game, Hitman Absolution for Steam released on January 8, 2011. The game is not for sale for home consoles or handhelds. The mission itself features a sequence of scenes where the player's disguise as the hitman, 47, is put to the test. More kill cams show the assassin (the player) killing the target (the policeman) and taking his place by using bulletproof glasses. The player must then mimic the movements and even the voice of the target in order to avoid being caught. During this process, 47 is forced to betray his true identity and engage in a seduction to reach his target. The chapter also features a new score, music and sound effects, and several new items and features. The soundtrack was made by award-winning composer Ninja Gajin, who has also worked on the other Hitman games. Hitman Absolution has new cutscenes of 47's interactions with well-known enemies, such as the Knights Templar and the Ninja Gaiden. In the chapter, Agent 47 is referred to as a "Netherlander" and his girlfriend as a "Milanese". The game also features a new and more detailed level map, as well as multiple improvements, including new physics and new ways of interacting with objects and several new types of weapons. The game employs a new gameplay system: "Sneak around, Style your disguise and Decide your weapons." The player must sneak around the level undetected, fashion his/her disguise and choose his/her weapons. The game will dynamically change the player's disguise based on the mission environment. New features include a motion capture camera-routine, enhanced sound effects, and the "Mission Mode". There are also numerous new features, including new maps, costumes, weapons, gadgets f678ea9f9e
